A poster presentation is a way to communicate your idea or your understanding of a topic in a concise and visually engaging format. A poster presentation usually includes two elements: a poster. a brief verbal explanation of the poster content or topic. A poster presentation provides a visual representation of your study through text, charts, graphs, and other visual aids. A poster presentation allows viewers to read your study material at their own leisure and to interact with you—perhaps asking questions about your methods or your findings.

Outlining your poster first is a great way to get started. Your poster should generally contain the following content:

- A title and list of authors; the title should be catchy and serve to provide a sense of your Research idea , and serves to intrigue people into reading your poster.
- Presenters also often include an institutional logo on their poster, often near the title and authors' names.
- An introduction section, which provides a brief background of your research and, for instance, definitions of key terms
- A materials and methods section, which briefly describes your procedures, methods, and/or materials used.

- An implications and/or conclusions section, which conveys your key findings or major results and convinces readers that your work is important and has impact on the world.
- Acknowledgements, which, if appropriate, includes your research mentor, any funding sources, etc.

Poster presentation plays a predominant role in this modern world, especially B.Tech students should add flavor of presentation skills to their resume as a good company look for it. In addition to studies other activities are also important-poster presentation is one among those activities and is very much required in today's world. In this competitive world we must explore every nuke and corner in order to get success and better opportunities.
